[STYLE + CAMERA + ATMOSPHERE]
Raw vertical phone video filmed by a tourist standing on a swamp boardwalk, one continuous handheld take. Hand shake, clumsy digital pinch-zooms that go soft then snap sharp, late pans. Whenever the phone is not zoomed in, the shot is wide and far: the entire airboat, hammock, man, cypress and water all fit in frame. The boardwalk rope rail and the straw sun hat of another tourist stay at the frame edge. Everyone stays dead serious. Real-time speed.

LOCKED SET: Louisiana cypress swamp, green water, Spanish moss overhead. LEFT: a flat aluminum airboat, its giant propeller idling inside a rusted round cage, an empty black pilot seat, a red cooler and a bare metal throttle pedal on the deck. RIGHT: a cypress trunk. One rope net hammock is tied from the fan cage to that trunk.

LOCKED CAST: one enormous Cajun man asleep on his back in the hammock: denim bib overalls, white rubber boots crossed at the ankles, camouflage cap pulled down over his eyes, a fishing rod wedged between his boots. He stays limp and asleep throughout. One black cat, entering from the left at second 3.

Audio: engine chug, cicadas, snoring, then fan roar, a huge twang, tourists gasping, a heavy thump.

[TIMELINE]
0-3s: [HOOK] The propeller turns slowly and its breeze sways the hammock fringe. The man snores. The phone zooms clumsily onto his white boots, then pulls far back to a wide shot.
3-7s: [CAT ENTERS] Wide shot. A black cat walks in from the left edge along the airboat gunwale and hops onto the empty pilot seat. The phone swings left to find it.
7-10s: [CAUSE] The cat drops to the deck beside the throttle pedal, then jumps and lands on the pedal, slamming it down.

Zoom on the cat.
10-14s: [FAN ROARS] The phone zooms out wide. The propeller becomes a blur. The wind flattens the Spanish moss and rips the straw hat off the tourist. The airboat surges away to the left and the hammock snaps taut.
14-18s: [STRETCH] Wide shot, the phone pans left with the boat. The hammock stretches long and thin like a rubber band between cage and trunk, the man still asleep in the middle.
18-22s: [SLINGSHOT] The knot slips off the cypress. The hammock fires him like a slingshot, boots crossed, over the airboat and the treetops. The phone whips up to the white sky.
22-26s: [BOAT ALONE] The phone drops back to the water, wide: the pilotless airboat curves around a small islet and heads back toward the boardwalk, cat still on the pedal.
26-30s: [PAYOFF] Wide shot. He falls out of the sky into the pilot seat, sitting upright, cap still over his eyes. The hull dips and splashes. He keeps snoring. The cat climbs onto his lap and the airboat glides past the boardwalk.
