Reference binding: @Image1 is AGENT: take the face, short dark hair, thin build, black suit, white shirt and thin black tie; ignore the sheet layout, the dark backdrop and the life-size scale.

Camera first, hard requirement: ultra low-angle macro at desk level, moving with the agent at full speed in every beat, never locked off. Vertical 9:16, with the tiny agent in the lower third and the giant desk objects towering into the upper frame.

Look: photoreal miniature film, shallow depth of field, motion blur, the moody colour glow of a desk lamp at night. No text, no logos, no brand marks. All keycaps are blank. The monitor is dark and blurred with no image on it. No game UI. No guns of any kind.

CAST, from the reference sheet: AGENT, 3 cm tall, a sharp black suit, white shirt, thin tie, always running. THE GIANT: one huge human right hand and forearm, out of focus until it strikes, unaware of him.

MAP: a dark gaming desk. The keyboard lies across the middle, with a tall plain silver drink can to its right. A black mouse on a large mouse pad is at the far right. AGENT runs from screen-left towards screen-right through the whole film.

0:00 to 0:03. First frame at full sprint, tracking from the side, AGENT running along the keyboard's front edge, tie flying. The giant fingers slam down on the blank keys. Each key plunges like a piston right behind his heels, and he jumps onto the keys and keeps running across the tops as they punch down one after another under him.

0:03 to 0:06. Tracking from behind. A key springs up under his foot and throws him into a forward roll. He lands running. A loose cable snaps taut across his path as the giant hand tugs it. He vaults over it, one hand on top.

0:06 to 0:09. The giant fingertips sweep down the desk beside him. A dropped metal pen cap flies out, tumbling past his head in motion blur, and it bounces away. He zigzags around crumbs the size of boulders, which jump at each knuckle thud on the desk.

0:09 to 0:12. Slow motion. The giant wrist hits the silver can. Tall as a tower, it tips over towards him. Its opening is pointing at him, and golden liquid bursts out in a slow wave. He sprints straight at it and leaps through the wave, spheres of liquid hanging around him. They break on his suit and darken the cloth. The can lands behind him and rolls.

0:12 to 0:15. Back to full speed, camera from the front, his face a third of the frame height, calm and soaked. He lands on the mouse pad, rolls and jumps onto the top of the black mouse just as the giant palm closes down over it from above, its shadow covering him. The hand flicks the mouse hard to the right, and he crouches, surfing it with one arm out, fabric pad blurring beneath him towards the desk's edge. The film ends mid-surf. No held final shot.

Sound: driving spy percussion with a huge slow-motion drop. Keys clack like thunder, heavy thuds, can roar, liquid splash, his tiny running footsteps.
