Tiny Chai

14 s · vertical 9:16 · 15 prompts in build order · 24,144 characters

Every prompt behind this film, in order. It is open source. Remix it, rewrite it, make it yours.

Want the next one? Message @irushi.ai: https://ig.me/m/irushi.ai

These prompts ran in order and the later ones use reference images: the sheets, frames and stills made by the earlier image prompts. Make those first, then upload them with each later prompt where it says image 1, @Image1 and so on. The heading above each prompt names the tool and format it ran with.

Production package (one 4K image) · nanobanana_pro · InVideo · 16:9 4K

Reference binding: image 1 is the existing character and set sheet: keep RUSTOM KAKA's face, moustache, spectacles and clothes, THE MOON's face and night-cap, and the cart and clay town; but REMAKE them all as real handmade plasticine, not smooth CG. Rustom now always wears a snug rust-red knitted cap that covers his whole head. Ignore the sheet's layout.

One single production package board for an original stop-motion claymation short, laid out as a clean pre-production document on a dark charcoal background, 16:9, four clearly separated panels. EVERY image on the board is a PHOTOGRAPH of a real stop-motion miniature set shot on a tabletop with real studio lights and a macro lens: handmade plasticine puppets with clearly visible fingerprints, thumb smudges, tool marks and slightly lumpy hand-sculpted forms; matte clay surfaces, never glossy, never smooth; real felt and knitted-wool fabrics; shallow miniature depth of field. It must look like Aardman-style tabletop craft photography, not computer graphics.

PANEL 1 (left column) CAST: RUSTOM KAKA, stout kindly old chai-wallah puppet: round brown clay face, big white bushy clay moustache, small round wire spectacles, snug rust-red knitted cap covering his whole head, rust-red knitted muffler, cream kurta, khaki sleeveless sweater vest, a blue-and-cream checked cloth over his LEFT shoulder; front full-body view and a face close-up. THE MOON: one pale silver-cream clay crescent with a sleepy gentle face on its inner curve, half-closed eyelids, a small grey knitted night-cap with a bobble on its upper tip, a soft cream glow.

PANEL 2 (centre, the largest panel) SET from the street side, pre-dawn: Rustom's tiny wooden chai cart with two wheels under a patched terracotta-and-cream striped canvas awning, on a cobbled clay corner of a hill town of stacked clay houses in terracotta, mint and ochre. At the cart's LEFT end ONE small clay charcoal stove glowing orange with ONE brass pot on it, a cotton-wool wisp of steam. On the cart counter ONE dented brass kettle and ONE small ribbed glass, nothing else. Deep blue pre-dawn sky, no sun; THE MOON hangs low just above the left end of the awning, its face turned to screen-right toward the cart. Rustom stands behind the cart facing the camera.

PANEL 3 (top right) FLOOR PLAN: a clean top-down diagram: the cart in the middle, R (Rustom) behind it, the stove at its left end, M (the Moon) above the left end, and a camera icon on the street side facing the cart.

PANEL 4 (bottom right) PROPS, macro tabletop photos of clay props: ONE dented brass kettle, ONE small ribbed glass full of caramel-brown clay chai, the same glass empty with a rim of silver glitter, ONE brass pot. Count: 1 kettle, 1 glass, 1 pot.

Palette: dawn blue, terracotta, chai caramel, brass gold, moon cream. Short white panel titles only (CAST, SET, FLOOR PLAN, PROPS) and the names RUSTOM KAKA and THE MOON. No other text, no signs, no lettering on the set.

Opening frame, step 1 · nanobanana_pro · 9:16 2K

Reference binding: image 1 is the production package: take RUSTOM KAKA, THE MOON, the cart, the stove and the town from it exactly; ignore its layout, titles and text.

A PHOTOGRAPH of a real stop-motion miniature set on a tabletop, macro lens, real small studio lights: handmade plasticine puppets with clearly visible fingerprints, thumb smudges, tool marks and slightly lumpy hand-sculpted forms, matte clay, real knitted wool and felt; shallow miniature depth of field. Not CGI, not smooth, not glossy.

Opening frame, vertical 9:16 MEDIUM-WIDE from the street side at cobble level, camera facing the cart. Rustom stands behind his tiny wooden chai cart facing the camera; he and the cart fill the lower 55 percent of the frame, his head at the frame's middle. The patched terracotta-and-cream striped awning above him. At the cart's LEFT end, ONE clay charcoal stove glowing orange with ONE brass pot on it, a cotton-wool wisp of steam. THE MOON hangs low in the upper LEFT of the frame just above the left end of the awning, its sleepy face turned to screen-right, both eyes closed, about as tall as Rustom.

Action pose: Rustom holds ONE dented brass kettle raised high in his RIGHT hand (frame left side) and ONE small ribbed glass low in his LEFT hand, and a long glossy arc of caramel-brown clay chai falls from the kettle spout into the glass. The cart counter is otherwise empty: no other glasses, no other pots.
RUSTOM KAKA exactly as in the package: round brown clay face, big white bushy moustache, small round wire spectacles, snug rust-red knitted cap covering his whole head, rust-red knitted muffler, cream kurta, khaki sleeveless sweater vest, blue-and-cream checked cloth over his LEFT shoulder. THE MOON exactly as in the package: pale silver-cream clay crescent, sleepy face on its inner curve facing screen-right, grey knitted night-cap with a bobble on its upper tip, soft cream glow, hanging from one thin visible rig wire from above.
Light, one state only: pre-dawn, deep blue sky, no sun; warm orange glow from the clay charcoal stove at frame left, low; the soft cream glow of the Moon from above-left. Palette: dawn blue, terracotta, chai caramel, brass gold, moon cream. Vertical 9:16. No text, no signs, no lettering anywhere.

Opening frame, step 2 (edit: behind the cart, cloth, no sun glow) · nanobanana_pro

Reference binding: image 1 is the opening frame to fix. Image 2 is the sip frame: it shows where Rustom stands (BEHIND the cart counter, his lower body hidden by it) and how he is dressed. Keep the real stop-motion clay look of both: fingerprints, tool marks, matte plasticine, real knitted wool.

Remake image 1 with the same camera (vertical 9:16 MEDIUM-WIDE from the street side, slight low angle), the same pour and the same Moon position, with these fixes:
1. Rustom stands BEHIND his wooden chai cart, facing the camera; the cart counter crosses the frame at his waist, hiding his legs. He and the cart fill the lower 55 percent of the frame. The striped awning is above his head.

2. Over his LEFT shoulder (frame right) hangs the blue-and-cream checked cloth, exactly as in image 2.
3. He holds ONE dented brass kettle raised high in his RIGHT hand (frame left) and ONE small ribbed glass in his LEFT hand just above the counter; a long glossy arc of caramel-brown clay chai falls from the spout into the glass.
4. ONE clay charcoal stove glowing orange with ONE brass pot on it sits on the ground at the cart's LEFT end, a cotton-wool wisp of steam. The counter is otherwise empty: no other pots, glasses or food.
5. Remove the bright glow in the top-left sky: the sky is an even deep pre-dawn blue with no sun and no bright spot. THE MOON hangs in the upper LEFT just above the left end of the awning from one thin visible rig wire, sleepy face turned to screen-right, eyes closed, soft cream glow.
No text, no signs, no lettering.

Opening frame, step 3 (edit: the hand swap attempt; texture) · nanobanana_pro

Edit image 1. Keep the same camera, framing, set, Rustom standing BEHIND the cart counter (his legs hidden by it), the awning over his head, the Moon on its wire in the upper left, the stove with ONE brass pot at the cart's left end, the street and the light.
Change which hand holds what (directions are as seen in the picture):
- The hand on the RIGHT side of the picture (next to the checked cloth) now holds the dented brass kettle raised high, its spout pointing toward the middle of the frame.
- The hand on the LEFT side of the picture now holds the small ribbed glass just above the counter, under the spout.
- A glossy arc of caramel clay chai falls from the spout, right to left, down into the glass.
Also remove every other object from the counter and the shelf behind him (no pots, jars, bread or other glasses), and make the handmade clay texture obvious: visible fingerprints and thumb smudges on his face and hands, small tool marks, matte clay, real knitted wool. No text.

OPENING FRAME, image 1 (edit: the glass stands on the counter) · nanobanana_pro

Edit image 1. Keep everything the same (camera, framing, Rustom behind the cart, the kettle raised in the hand on the LEFT side of the picture pouring, the Moon upper left on its wire, the stove and pot, the street, the light), with these changes only:
1. The small ribbed glass now STANDS on the cart counter by itself, directly under the falling arc of chai, which pours into it. No hand holds the glass.
2. His other hand (on the RIGHT side of the picture) now rests flat on the counter edge beside the glass, fingers relaxed.
3. The handmade clay texture is more obvious: visible fingerprints and thumb smudges on his face and hands, tiny tool marks, matte clay with no glossy sheen.
No text.

MCU source still · nanobanana_pro

Reference binding: image 1 is the production package: take RUSTOM KAKA exactly from it; ignore its layout, titles and text.

A PHOTOGRAPH of a real stop-motion miniature set on a tabletop, macro lens, real small studio lights: handmade plasticine puppets with clearly visible fingerprints, thumb smudges, tool marks and slightly lumpy hand-sculpted forms, matte clay, real knitted wool and felt; shallow miniature depth of field. Not CGI, not smooth, not glossy.

Vertical 9:16 MEDIUM CLOSE-UP of Rustom from the street side across the cart, slightly low angle: his head and shoulders fill the frame, his face about 45 percent of the frame height, eyes on the upper-third line, the top of his knitted cap just inside the top edge. He holds ONE small ribbed glass of steaming caramel chai at chest height in his LEFT hand, and looks up to screen-left with a warm, crinkle-eyed smile. Behind him, soft: the striped awning underside and the deep blue sky; warm orange stove glow on the left side of his face, cool cream moonlight rim from above-left. RUSTOM KAKA exactly as in the package: round brown clay face, big white bushy moustache, small round wire spectacles, snug rust-red knitted cap covering his whole head, rust-red knitted muffler, cream kurta, khaki sleeveless sweater vest, blue-and-cream checked cloth over his LEFT shoulder. THE MOON exactly as in the package: pale silver-cream clay crescent, sleepy face on its inner curve facing screen-right, grey knitted night-cap with a bobble on its upper tip, soft cream glow, hanging from one thin visible rig wire from above.

Light, one state only: pre-dawn, deep blue sky, no sun; warm orange glow from the clay charcoal stove at frame left, low; the soft cream glow of the Moon from above-left. Palette: dawn blue, terracotta, chai caramel, brass gold, moon cream. Vertical 9:16. No text, no signs, no lettering anywhere.

MCU, image 2 (edit of the crop: texture) · nanobanana_pro

Edit image 1. Keep the same camera, framing, puppet, wardrobe, the full glass of chai in his RIGHT hand (frame left), the Moon's tip at the top left, the awning and the light. He looks up to screen-left at the Moon, never at the camera. Change only the surface: Make the handmade stop-motion texture obvious at full size: clearly visible fingerprints and thumb smudges pressed into every clay surface (faces, hands, moustache, the Moon), small tool marks and seams where clay pieces join, slightly uneven lumpy forms, matte clay with no glossy CG sheen, real knitted wool with loose fibres; tabletop studio light with a little falloff.
No text.

Sip source still · nanobanana_pro

Reference binding: image 1 is the production package: take RUSTOM KAKA, THE MOON, the cart and the town from it exactly; ignore its layout, titles and text.

A PHOTOGRAPH of a real stop-motion miniature set on a tabletop, macro lens, real small studio lights: handmade plasticine puppets with clearly visible fingerprints, thumb smudges, tool marks and slightly lumpy hand-sculpted forms, matte clay, real knitted wool and felt; shallow miniature depth of field. Not CGI, not smooth, not glossy.

Vertical 9:16 TWO-SHOT, slight low angle from the street side, same direction as the package SET view. Lower half of the frame: Rustom's head, shoulders and raised arms behind the cart, face in three-quarter view looking up to screen-left, a warm smile under his moustache. He holds ONE small ribbed glass of caramel-brown chai up above his head in BOTH hands. Upper half of the frame: THE MOON, hanging from its thin rig wire, has swung down so close that its face fills a third of the frame height; its sleepy face on the inner curve faces screen-right toward Rustom, eyes closed in bliss, and the LOWER pointed tip of the crescent dips INTO the glass, touching the chai. A thin curl of steam rises from the glass around the tip. The striped awning edge is visible behind, the stove glow at the frame-left bottom edge.
RUSTOM KAKA exactly as in the package: round brown clay face, big white bushy moustache, small round wire spectacles, snug rust-red knitted cap covering his whole head, rust-red knitted muffler, cream kurta, khaki sleeveless sweater vest, blue-and-cream checked cloth over his LEFT shoulder. THE MOON exactly as in the package: pale silver-cream clay crescent, sleepy face on its inner curve facing screen-right, grey knitted night-cap with a bobble on its upper tip, soft cream glow, hanging from one thin visible rig wire from above.
Light, one state only: pre-dawn, deep blue sky, no sun; warm orange glow from the clay charcoal stove at frame left, low; the soft cream glow of the Moon from above-left. Palette: dawn blue, terracotta, chai caramel, brass gold, moon cream. Vertical 9:16. No text, no signs, no lettering anywhere.

Sip frame, step 2 (chained from the opening frame) · nanobanana_pro

Reference binding: image 1 is the opening frame: keep its exact set (the same awning over his head, the same dim blue street and buildings at the same brightness, the stove and ONE brass pot at frame left), puppet, clay texture and light. Image 2 shows the idea of the sip only; do NOT copy its bright buildings, extra pots or its framing.

Same set and light as image 1, camera lower and closer: a vertical 9:16 TWO-SHOT from the street at counter height, slight low angle. Rustom stands behind the counter; his head and shoulders are in the lower half of the frame, his face tilted UP toward the Moon, fully visible between his raised arms, eyes on the Moon (never at the camera), a warm smile under his moustache. He holds the small ribbed glass of caramel chai in BOTH hands at arm's length, a hand-width ABOVE his knitted cap, never touching it. In the upper half of the frame THE MOON, hanging from its thin visible rig wire, has swung down so its lower pointed tip dips INTO the glass, just touching the chai; its sleepy face on the inner curve faces screen-right, eyes closed in bliss; the Moon's face is about a third of the frame height. The striped awning edge is just behind and above Rustom, as in image 1. Counter: nothing on it but the brass kettle resting where he set it down. Clearly visible fingerprints and thumb smudges on every clay surface, tool marks, matte clay, real knitted wool. Pre-dawn deep blue sky, no sun; orange stove glow from frame left low; soft cream Moon glow. No text.

Sip frame, step 3 · nanobanana_pro

Reference binding: image 1 is a real frame from shot 1 of this film: keep its exact street, buildings and colours (dim blue-grey and purple houses, deep blue sky, no bright pastel facades), the cart, the awning, Rustom, the Moon's size and look, and its light. Image 2 shows only the idea of the sip pose; do NOT copy its bright buildings, its framing, its extra pot or its glass position.

A vertical 9:16 TWO-SHOT on the same set as image 1, camera lower and closer, a three-quarter angle from frame right (the camera is clearly off his sightline). Rustom stands behind the counter; his head and shoulders in the lower half of the frame. His head is tilted BACK about 30 degrees, chin up, his eyes turned up-left toward the Moon (never at the camera), a warm smile under his moustache. His arms are almost straight, raised high, both hands holding the SAME small plain glass of caramel chai from image 1, with a clear gap of sky of at least half a head-height between the bottom of the glass and the top of his knitted cap; the glass never touches the cap.
THE MOON, the same size as in image 1 (about as tall as Rustom's head and shoulders, no wider than half the awning), hangs on its thin visible rig wire in the upper LEFT, swung down so its lower pointed tip dips into the glass. Its sleepy face faces screen-right, eyes closed.
On the counter: exactly ONE brass kettle; nothing else; nothing at the right edge of frame. The stove with its one pot is at the far left, low.
Clearly visible fingerprints, thumb smudges and tool marks on every clay surface, matte clay, real knitted wool. Pre-dawn deep blue sky, no sun; orange stove glow from frame left low; soft cream Moon glow. No text.

TWO-SHOT, image 3 (edit: the tip inside the glass, no stream, pot back) · nanobanana_pro

Edit image 1. Keep everything the same (camera, set, street colours, Rustom's pose with the glass held up at arm's length toward the Moon, his upturned face, the Moon's size and position, the kettle, the light), with these changes only:
1. The Moon's lower pointed tip now rests INSIDE the glass, below the rim, touching the chai surface. There is NO stream, drip, thread or splash of liquid anywhere between the Moon and the glass; the outside of the Moon's tip is clean and dry.
2. Put back ONE brass pot sitting on the clay stove at the far left (steam rising from it).

3. The glass is the same small, short, straight-sided ribbed glass, no taller than his fist.
No text.

MOON CLOSE-UP, image 4 (edit of the crop: no stream, blush) · nanobanana_pro

Edit image 1. Keep the same camera, crop, the Moon (face, eyes closed in bliss, night-cap, clay texture), the glass, his hand and the background. Change only: the Moon's pointed tip rests INSIDE the glass, below the rim, touching the chai; there is NO stream, drip or thread of liquid between the Moon and the glass, and the outside of the tip is clean and dry. Add a small soft pink clay blush on the Moon's cheek. No text.

End frame, step 1 · nanobanana_pro

Edit image 1. Keep the exact same camera, crop, puppet, wardrobe, background, light, his hand position and the SAME small plain glass: same size (no taller than his clay fist), same shape and same place in his hand. Do not enlarge it, do not make it cut-crystal or faceted.
Changes only:
1. The glass is now completely EMPTY: clear glass, no chai, only a faint caramel stain at the bottom.
2. Its rim is ringed with bright silver glitter, sparkling with tiny star-like glints, clearly visible.
3. He looks DOWN into the empty glass (eyes on it, never at the camera), with a soft crinkle-eyed smile; mouth closed.
4. Make the handmade clay obvious: visible fingerprints and thumb smudges on his face, nose and hand, small tool marks, matte clay.
No text.

END FRAME, image 5 (edit: eyes down, mouth closed) · nanobanana_pro

Edit image 1. Keep everything identical (camera, crop, puppet, wardrobe, the same small empty glass with its glittering rim in the same hand, background, light). Change only his eyes and mouth: his eyelids lower and his pupils point clearly DOWN into the empty glass in his hand, never toward the camera; his mouth is closed in a soft, contented smile under the moustache. No text.

THE SCENE: 5 shots in ONE generation (take 2, the take in the cut) · seedance_2_5.r2v · InVideo · 720p native, 9:16, bitrate high, 14 s, native audio Reference binding: image 1 is the OPENING FRAME of shot 1: start exactly on it. Image 2 is the MEDIUM CLOSE-UP of Rustom for shot 2. Image 3 is the TWO-SHOT for shot 3 (his arms already raised, the glass held up to the Moon, the tip inside it). Image 4 is the CLOSE-UP of the Moon for shot 4. Image 5 is the MEDIUM CLOSE-UP for shot 5 (the EMPTY glass with a glittering rim). Image 6 is the PRODUCTION PACKAGE (cast, set, floor plan, props). Take characters, clay texture, set, props and light from these exactly; ignore panel layouts, titles and text.

Create an exactly 14-second vertical 9:16 claymation stop-motion scene: one continuous scene at one chai cart, FIVE shots with hard cuts, native audio.

Logline: in a clay town that wakes before the sun, old chai-wallah Rustom Kaka pours the first cup of every day for one regular: the Moon.

Look: a real stop-motion film shot on a tabletop miniature set: handmade plasticine puppets with clearly visible fingerprints, thumb smudges and tool marks; matte clay, real knitted wool and checked cotton; macro lens, shallow miniature depth of field; small, deliberate puppet moves. Steam is cotton-wool, chai is glossy caramel-brown. Never smooth glossy CGI. Light, one state in every shot: pre-dawn, deep even blue sky, no sun, no sunrise; the street and buildings stay dim and blue in every shot; warm orange glow from the clay charcoal stove at frame left, low; the soft cream glow of the Moon from above-left.

CONTINUITY LOCK (every frame of every shot):
- RUSTOM KAKA: round brown clay face, big white bushy moustache, small round wire spectacles, snug rust-red knitted cap covering his whole head, rust-red knitted muffler, cream kurta, khaki sleeveless sweater vest, blue-and-cream checked cloth over his LEFT shoulder (frame right). He stays behind his cart counter, facing the street, under the striped awning.
- THE MOON: one pale silver-cream clay crescent, sleepy face on its inner curve facing screen-right, a grey knitted night-cap with a bobble, a soft cream glow. It hangs from ONE thin visible rig wire from above, always in the upper LEFT of frame; it moves only by swinging and dipping on its wire.
- Props: ONE dented brass kettle; ONE small, short, straight-sided ribbed glass, no taller than his fist, the SAME size and shape in every shot including shot 5 (never a tall, flared or cut-crystal glass); ONE clay charcoal stove with ONE brass pot at the cart's left end; the small wooden cart with two wheels and the patched terracotta-and-cream striped awning. On the counter: ONLY the kettle (after shot 1) and nothing else; no jars, no second pot, nothing at the right edge of frame.
- Hands: in shot 1 his RIGHT hand (frame left) holds the kettle and the glass stands on the counter. At the end of shot 1 he sets the kettle down on the counter and picks the glass up with that same RIGHT hand. From shot 2 on the glass is always in his RIGHT hand (frame left), lifted in both hands only in shot 3.
- Physics: chai pours only from the held kettle spout into the glass. Only the Moon drinks: the chai level falls only while the Moon's tip is in the glass; nothing flows out of the Moon; the tip comes out dry. Once empty, the glass stays EMPTY to the end. Rustom NEVER drinks: the glass never passes in front of his face or mouth in any shot. There is never a stream, drip or thread of liquid between the Moon and the glass.

SHOT 1 (0-3s) MEDIUM-WIDE from the street at cobble level, locked off, exactly image 1: Rustom pours a long glossy arc of chai from the raised kettle into the glass standing on the counter; it fills. Above the awning the sleepy Moon opens one eye. He sets the kettle down and picks up the full glass with the same hand. <bubbling pot> <chai splashing into glass> <charcoal crackle>

SHOT 2 (3-5.5s) MEDIUM CLOSE-UP, exactly image 2: Rustom, the full glass in his right hand (frame left), looks up to screen-left at the Moon, never at the lens, and says warmly in an old man's gentle Indian voice: "First cup's yours, as always." <his voice>
SHOT 3 (5.5-9s) TWO-SHOT, exactly image 3, the same dim blue street, awning and Moon size as shot 1: it BEGINS with his arms already raised, holding the glass up toward the Moon at arm's length, well away from his face; his face tilted up, eyes on the Moon, never at the lens. The Moon swings down on its wire and rests the lower tip of its crescent inside the glass, below the rim. <soft creak of the wire>
SHOT 4 (9-10.5s) CLOSE-UP on the Moon, exactly image 4: its tip rests inside the glass, below the rim, touching the chai; eyes closed in bliss, it sips as if through a straw: the chai level visibly falls to the bottom; no stream, drip or splash; a small pink clay blush on its cheek.
SHOT 5 (10.5-14s) MEDIUM CLOSE-UP, exactly image 5, the same setup as shot 2: the SAME small glass as shot 2, no taller than his fist, now EMPTY, held at chest height for the whole shot, far from his mouth; its whole rim sparkles with silver moon-dust glitter. His eyes look DOWN into the empty glass the whole shot, pupils pointing down, never at the lens; chuckles under his moustache and says softly: "Same time tomorrow." He never drinks. <his chuckle and line>

Do not show subtitles, captions, letters or any text. Do not add music. Do not change any puppet, clothing item, colour or prop between shots. No sunrise, no sun, no bright buildings. No extra characters. Never smooth CGI rendering.

Audio: his warm voice, close and clear; foley of pouring, slurp, stove crackle, a distant rooster. No music.