No reference image: this prompt ran on its own.

Camera first: medium shot at desk height, 35mm, a slow gentle drift, framing ROBO at screen-left and a large monitor at screen-right angled half towards us, so we see both his face and the monitor picture. The picture is always one single full frame. Vertical 9:16.

STYLE: polished stylised 3D animated comedy, cosy bedroom at night, warm desk lamp plus the monitor's light. No text and no logos anywhere.

CAST: ROBO, an original small round orange robot, about desk height, smooth glossy shell, stubby arms with three-fingered hands, short antenna with a white ball on top. His face is a white rounded-rectangle screen on the front of his head that shows two big black oval eyes and a simple black line mouth. He sits on an office chair.

SET: a desk with a keyboard, the large monitor on screen-right angled half towards us, a mug, a desk lamp. The monitor shows one copy of ROBO at a time, filling the monitor, on a plain grey background.

0:00 to 0:03. Already moving in the first frame. ROBO taps one key. The monitor shows a copy of him with tiny noodle legs, wobbling. ROBO's screen mouth stays a flat line.

0:03 to 0:06. He taps the key. The monitor shows a copy of him with his face upside down. His screen eyes narrow to slits, mouth flat.

0:06 to 0:09. He taps the key. The monitor shows a copy of him made of wobbling green jelly. He folds his arms, mouth still a flat line.

0:09 to 0:12. One continuous shot, no edit. The camera pushes in past his shoulder towards the monitor. He taps the key one last time. The monitor shows a copy that looks exactly like him except for one huge cartoon human nose in the middle of the screen face, sniffing, the copy large in frame.

0:12 to 0:15. Medium close on ROBO, his face screen a third of the frame height, three-quarter view, eyes on the monitor, the nose copy still visible on the monitor beside him. His screen mouth bursts into a huge open laugh, his eyes squeeze into two upside-down arcs, and he tips back in the chair, slapping the desk with one hand. The film ends mid-laugh.

Sound: soft key clicks, a wobble sound for each copy, one loud sniff, then his laugh, a bright synthetic giggle. No dialogue. No music.
