Static wide composition, single practical light source from end of corridor, 16mm film grain, long shadows, uncomfortable stillness. Quiet unease.

A long empty school corridor at night. One fluorescent tube flickers at the far end, casting stuttering light across rows of closed locker doors. The camera is locked still at floor level, looking down the corridor. Nothing moves for 3 seconds. Then one locker door at the far end slowly swings open by itself. No sound except the fluorescent buzz. The light flickers twice, goes dark for a moment, comes back. The locker door is now closed again. But the one next to it is open. The camera has not moved.

Audio: fluorescent tube electrical buzz, faint metallic creak of locker hinge, silence, distant building settling sounds. Motion intensity: very low. Duration: 15s.
