Nighttime city after rain, warm streetlamp pools of light on wet pavement, neon sign reflections in puddles, single source motivated lighting, 35mm film grain. Quiet tension.

A rotary telephone sits on a wooden desk in a dim apartment. Rain streams down the window behind it. The phone rings once, the rotary dial vibrates slightly. No one answers. The camera slowly pushes in toward the phone. Neon light from outside pulses through the rain on the glass, casting moving colored shadows across the desk surface. The ringing stops. Silence. A hand enters frame from the right, hovers over the receiver, then pulls back. The phone sits in the quiet room. Rain continues.

Audio: rain on glass, distant city traffic, single phone ring with mechanical rattle, silence, soft ambient room tone.
Motion intensity: low. Duration: 15s.
